

EMPLOYEE_ANALYSIS PROJECT RECOMMENDATIONS

Actionable recommendations to improve employee performance, recognition, and promotion decision alignment.

1 RECOGNIZE & REWARD TOP PERFORMERS

Employees performing better than the overall company average should be appreciated and recognized in some way, such as through bonuses, incentives, leadership opportunities, appreciation, or other rewards, so that they stay motivated and do not leave the company.

2 REWARD GOOD PERFORMERS MARKED AS NOT ELIGIBLE

Employees who have good overall performance — including attendance, performance score, peer rating, task completion, and KPI score — but are still marked as promotion eligible = No, should receive some kind of incentive or recognition. The company can also consider reevaluating the promotion policy for such employees.

3 REVIEW LOW PERFORMERS MARKED AS ELIGIBLE

Employees whose overall performance is low but are marked as promotion eligible = Yes should be reviewed by management. They may be given a one-time warning, and the company should consider reevaluating the promotion eligibility policy to make sure promotion decisions are aligned with actual performance.

4 MONITOR & SUPPORT LOW PERFORMERS

Employees with consistently low performance across multiple performance metrics should be monitored regularly and given an opportunity to improve before making further decisions.

5 ALIGN PROMOTION ELIGIBILITY WITH PERFORMANCE

Promotion eligibility and employee performance should be compared regularly so that employees who are performing well are not overlooked and employees with low performance are not incorrectly marked as eligible for promotion.
